

Appian for Healthcare Payers

Complaints, appeals, and grievances.

- Automate manual processes and create customized workflows.
- Increase visibility for clarity and accountability through the entire process.
- Securely scale operations on the cloud.
- Provide accurate reporting, the first time, through a single unified interface.

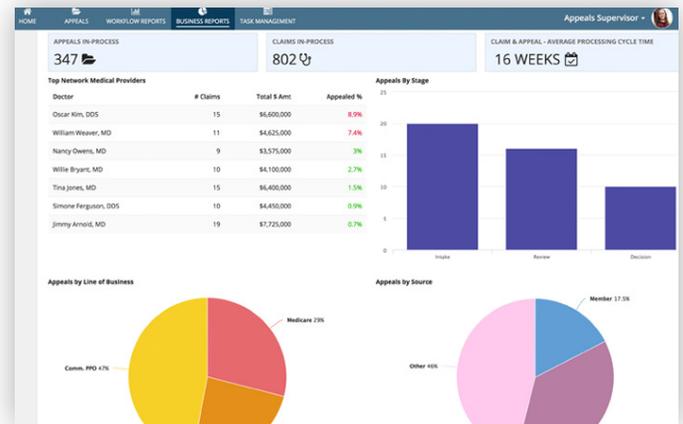

Handling one-off complaints, appeals, and grievances from health plan members can be a complex and heavily-manual process. Many healthcare payers have agents administer them through a homegrown arrangement of websites and emails in order to manage each case's unique needs.

Cases are also subject to regulatory oversight, so agents must report them to management, however, rigidly structured systems and siloed data can slow down this process. Manual one-offs also leave risk for both accuracy and stagnant reporting time, hindering the complaints, appeals, and grievances process which can adversely affect member satisfaction. In some cases, failure to run the appeals process fairly and efficiently can even result in negative outcomes, including lawsuits and state and federal scrutiny.
